TEACHING MATTERS

Stories of Leadership and Service in the Art of Teaching

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

There is no profession that has the opportunity to touch the future more than teaching.

I have always loved teaching, whether in parish ministry or in a classroom of students. When a member of faculty asks me to teach his or her class, I am thrilled. Doing so connects me with my vocational call to promote and ensure excellence in teaching. Exchanging ideas with students and faculty deepens my appreciation for the powerful ways my own teachers transformed my life.

The writer Nikos Kazantzakis said, "True teachers are those who use themselves as bridges over which they invite their students to cross; then, having facilitated their crossing, joyfully collapse, encouraging them to create their own."

Dr. Anna McEwan, our new provost and dean of the college, is that kind of teacher. I'm excited to say that a new generation of Huntingdon teachers—such as Dr. Allison Mugno (psychology), Dr. John Berch '98 (chemistry), Dr. Blake Ball (history), Dr. Siobahn Stiles (communication studies), Dr. Anneliese Spaeth (mathematics) and Dr. Kristi Copping (psychology)—are following the great teaching tradition set in place by senior faculty at this teaching institution. Point to any department at Huntingdon and you will find teachers who guide students to imagine their lives differently, and then get out of the way as their students march onward. Our coaches and staff care about students' lives just as profoundly. We are Huntingdon. We are family.

In fact, all of us are learners, and all of us are teachers.

When alumni return for Homecoming each year, I hear them sharing stories about friendships and spaces and places, of course. But often with deep reverence and love, they will say of one or more of their Huntingdon teachers or staff members, "That woman, that man ... changed my life."

With this issue, we celebrate good teaching. To that end, you will read, again and again, that the best teaching and learning begins with relationships. You can be confident that the Huntingdon tradition and motto, "Enter to grow in wisdom; go forth to apply wisdom in service," lives on with zeal and fervor on this beautiful, historic campus, where students can, as we say, "know and be known."

Faithfully your president,

President West teaches Dr. Kristi Copping's Psychology of Religion and Spirituality class.

TEACHING MATTERS

“We have accepted the responsibility of shaping someone’s future, and we don’t take that lightly.”

Teachers unlock doors. They open passageways to knowledge. They inspire students to step beyond the comfortable, learn new possibilities for their lives, appreciate and use their own gifts, and strive to grasp what they don’t know.

Teaching matters.

More importantly, good teaching matters.

Beginning with its opening days as Tuskegee Female College 164 years ago, Huntingdon has been a teaching institution. The College’s first president, Andrew Adgate Lipscomb, chalked the vision for the College’s teaching atmosphere.

“Great teachers, he felt, are those ‘who could be scientific in statement, in argument, in detail, and yet carry the fervor of a glowing soul into all their efforts.’ He had a horror of ‘scholars, mere scholars, chained down to their college-chairs,’ thinking machines rather than thinking souls. His own memories of college days were brightened by ‘the hereditary anecdotes of the college—the dry humor of some old professor—the fun of classmates.’” (The History of Huntingdon College: 1854–1954, Rhoda Coleman Ellison, page 29)

Huntingdon College’s academic hallmark has always been excellence in teaching. Because of the College’s size, that excellence begins and ends with relationships.

“We have accepted the responsibility of shaping someone’s future,” says Dr. Anna McEwan, provost and dean of the College. “And we don’t take that responsibility lightly. Huntingdon pre-service teachers, Huntingdon faculty—all of us who are engaged in the art of teaching—understand that we’re doing much more than delivering content and developing competencies. We hold ourselves to a high standard because we are a teaching institution.”

“When alumni return for Homecoming and other Huntingdon events, what they talk about most is how much their professors inspired them,” says Anthony Leigh, senior vice president for institutional development and alumni relations. “I hear about Dr. Rhoda Coleman Ellison, Dr. Gordon Chappell, Dr. Mary Jane Brannon, Dr. Thomas Staton ... and so many others. I think those vivid memories, more than anything else, illustrate the power of good teaching at Huntingdon.”

Katie Simon '20 and her classmates welcome special needs students from three elementary schools for Adapted Physical Education classes.

Dr. Anneliese Spaeth, right, assistant professor of mathematics, demonstrates the robot built by mathematics.

Educators who have joined Huntingdon's teaching ranks more recently have continued the storied teaching relationships and traditions while bringing a modern twist to the classroom experience.

"Every day I see another professor who is role-playing in class; or having students work in groups to illustrate a concept; or engaging students in a simulation about global concerns; or touring the Hyundai plant with students to discuss management style contrasts; or touring a law firm to discuss the ethical dilemmas faced by today's lawyers; or trudging through swamps to forage for flora and fauna. One faculty member is building a robotics lab to teach her students mathematics. The library has engaged students and faculty in celebration of the 20th anniversary of Harry Potter this year with their Hogwarts at Huntingdon series. Active learning; engaged learning; memorable learning takes place in exercises like these," says McEwan.

Most Huntingdon faculty members serve as academic advisers for their students. While helping students choose their classes, more important conversations take place. Discussions about what students like to learn, how they learn best, and what they'd like to do professionally introduce new career directions and inspire students to think about new possibilities for their lives. In this way, advising forms a bond and becomes a mentoring relationship that continues far beyond graduation.

"I think about it every day—how well my Huntingdon faculty prepared me for graduate school," says Lexie Ofe '17, a student at Vanderbilt Divinity School. "When I spoke with Dr. [Jason] Borders [professor of religion] about the next-to-last draft of my [Huntingdon religion] capstone, he said, 'This is very good work. But ... let me just ask you: do you think it is graduate-level work?’ He knew how much I cared about that project, so he nudged me in his simultaneously ever-so-kind-yet-burning way to give it all I’ve got. I took it home and poured my heart into it for the whole weekend, and to this day it means more to me than anything else I’ve written. Now that I’m in graduate school, I can do it right the first time—because my dear professor and friend taught me how.”

Faculty partnerships with the Center for Career and Vocation have led to the annual Meet the Firms accounting placement event, the Pre-Health Professions Fair, road trips to law schools and seminars, and the Teacher Education Job Fair, among other events. Together, faculty and the CCV have also forged numerous internships and externships for students. Active learning informs students not only about the subjects they’re studying, but also about themselves as learners—their skills, likes, and dislikes—and through real world work, real world connections form. Internships can shape future career decisions more than any other learning factor.

The teaching approach at Huntingdon inspires those who are called to teach, themselves, to pay the good classroom efforts forward. “Teachers can impact—positively or negatively—the way a student feels about school,” says Raina Lanier ’18, an Elementary Education/Collaborative Special Education major. I want my students to know their self-worth after being in my classroom, and for each of them to know that if they work hard, they can accomplish their dreams.” ■

Raina Lanier '18 tutors an elementary student, building literacy skills for the student and teaching skills for her own teacher candidate clinical experience.

Hogwarts wasn't the only thing that came to Huntingdon with the library series. A few “fantastic beasts” accompanied the wizards.

Dr. Jennifer Fremlin, professor of English and chair of the Department of Language and Literature, left, advises Tiffany Anderson '21, majoring in English with Secondary Teacher Education.

Why I Teach, and Why I Teach at Huntingdon

by Kristi Copping, Ph.D.

When I started graduate school at UNC-Chapel Hill, I was pretty certain that I would ultimately look for a faculty position at a research-focused institution after graduating. However, after serving as an instructor for a Child Development course, I completely fell in love with teaching. Soon after, I decided that while I was still committed to research, my true calling was to be a teacher. Thus, I determined that a teaching-focused institution would be the best fit for me. I was attracted to Huntingdon because of its small size and its emphasis on meaningful student-teacher interactions. I was excited by the idea of having smaller class sizes and the opportunity to really get to know my students.

I was delighted to find that being a professor here is so much more than just teaching. It's getting the opportunity to really mentor students and work with them throughout their college journey. The positive changes I see in my students from freshman year to graduation are astounding, and they make my job so rewarding in a way that I didn't know was possible. Only at a place like Huntingdon would you ever be able to closely witness that kind of development in every single one of your majors. And why is their development so remarkable? It's because of the amazing professors, staff, and administrators at Huntingdon who truly care about the academic success and overall wellbeing of all of our students. Never have I seen such commitment to student learning and happiness.

I love teaching because every day I get the opportunity to inspire my students to become as passionate about psychology as I am. And my students inspire me because they help me see my field in new and interesting ways. I also enjoy helping my students to think in creative ways as they apply their growing knowledge from their coursework here to real-world problems. For example, just yesterday in my Abnormal Psychology class, my students and I were thinking about possible phone apps that would allow caregivers to better assist and monitor their aging loved ones with Alzheimer's Disorder.

One of my other favorite things about working at Huntingdon is that when students graduate, they don't disappear from your life. I have been able to keep in touch with students via the alumni office or social media. Again, it's so rewarding to see the continued journey of our students and their successes in graduate school and/or their careers. I'd like to think I have contributed to my students' lives in meaningful ways, but I know for certain that they have impacted my life in so many priceless and unforgettable ways. I am so grateful to be a small part of their journey.

Dr. Kristi Copping, or "Doc Cop," as she is known by her students, is an associate professor of psychology and chairs the Department of Communication Studies and Psychology. She earned her Ph.D. and M.A. in developmental psychology at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill and her B.A. in psychology at the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. She was honored with Huntingdon's Julia Lightfoot Sellers Award for Excellence in Teaching in 2015.

AN INTERVIEW WITH DR. ANNA McEWAN

*“No man is an island,
Entire of itself,
Every man is a piece of the continent,
A part of the main.
If a clod be washed away by the sea,
Europe is the less.
As well as if a promontory were.
As well as if a manor of thy friend’s
Or of thine own were:
Any man’s death diminishes me,
Because I am involved in mankind,
And therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls;
It tolls for thee.”*

— John Donne

There’s a sense of serenity amid the laughter emanating from the Office of the Provost, in spite of the flurry as the College begins its 164th year. Dr. Anna McEwan, almost always smiling and usually sporting the school colors, brings stoic wisdom couched in freeing fun. Witness the car she drives: a zippy bright scarlet hybrid. Just outside her door is her treasured assistant, Kim Kirkland, whom she brought with her from the University of Montevallo.

Dr. McEwan joined Huntingdon as provost and dean of the college in July 2017. A career-long educator, she began teaching elementary school in Florida after completing her undergraduate studies in elementary education at Asbury College. While teaching, she completed her Master of Arts in Education at the University of West Florida. She went on to earn a Ph.D. in education at Florida State University, and it was there that she decided to focus her career in higher education.

With her phone by her side so that she can tweet out a hurrah for faculty or student achievement—she does so at least once daily—Dr. McEwan sat down to tell us a little more about her background and her perspective about her new role.

Dr. Anna McEwan, Provost and Dean of the College

What led you into the field of education?

I was determined not to be a teacher because there were already so many educators in my family, and I wanted to cut my own path. But then I started working with children in summer programs—camps and other activities—and realized I was good at it and found joy in doing it. Teaching is my calling, and it doesn’t matter to me if I’m teaching young children, college students, adults in Sunday School ... good teaching is good teaching.

When did your plan change to administration, and how did you take that next step?

It was very natural. I’ve tended to emerge as a leader when opportunities presented themselves. You step into a role, and that role leads to another role. When I was in my first position as an assistant professor, the person directing the graduate program passed away, so I stepped in and continued as director of graduate studies. Then I became the director of the elementary education program at Asbury. At every place there have been doors, and I’ve taken the chance to broaden and further develop my skills in every position.

At the heart of teaching is the notion of serving. When I walk into a classroom, I’m thinking, what do these students need, and what can I provide them so they can grow? I take the same approach to leadership. It’s not about status or power, it’s about “What do these people need?" What impediments can I remove? Creating conditions where people can flourish—that's what leaders do. Creating conditions in which others can learn, that's what teachers do. It's not about me, or about credit, it's about seizing opportunities to serve.

When did you decide that becoming a provost was your goal?

I was dean of a college with 900 students for 11 years. During that time, I helped rescue a program from accreditation troubles. We added new degree programs. We reorganized the entire administrative structure, without loss of momentum or morale, so I began thinking that I could do this on a broader institutional level.

At Montevallo, you oversaw a program called the Vertical Teaming Initiative. How did that program develop, and can you foresee similar community partnerships at Huntingdon?

I think leadership is about putting initiatives in place to address a particular problem. The Vertical Teaming Initiative came from college preparedness issues we were seeing among incoming students. So I thought, rather than whining, let's try to do something about it. We brought people together from high schools, the community college, and the university, and we discussed incoming students: what they're like, what they need. We discovered the problems of incoming students were more about soft skills: work ethic, emotional intelligence, and responsibility. Professors decided we could fill in academic gaps, but we needed help with some of the other problems—someone who's never done homework or hasn't learned to study or time manage, think critically, ask questions. We agreed to focus on these issues together.

I like listening to other voices. Two heads are better than one. In the end, you come out with a richer solution. I have a friend who says, "All problems have a simple solution, and it's usually wrong." Problems are complex, and they require finely nuanced answers. There are no quick fixes here, either. We can't simply look at what another college is doing, adopt that model, and expect it to work here.

What strengths do you see in Huntingdon's academic programs and faculty? How can Huntingdon build on those strengths?

Our faculty are so well-qualified. We have some powerfully credentialed people, and they love to teach. They're not trying to move somewhere else, or to climb the publication ladder; they're really dedicated to being the best they can be at a teaching-focused institution.

We need to share a little more with each other, and in our private circles I want to get faculty talking with each other. I want to celebrate the great things we do with students and in our classes. I like to brag on faculty so I hope we'll have a lot of peer sharing—faculty teaching each other. I also want to get the word out to the broader education community. The competitive part of me wants to kick butt! I want to find ways to elevate the profile of the faculty in general and the institution as a whole.

Dr. McEwan prepares for the coin toss at her first Hawks football game.

How do you compare your experience with public and private higher education?

I think the treasure lies in liberal arts education, whether public or private, but I think Huntingdon's treasure also lies in being faith-based. I believe in the ideals associated with the liberation of the mind, and I like the focus of those kinds of institutions. When you pair that with being a faith-based institution, I find a sense of coherence that mirrors who I am. At a private institution like Huntingdon, there is a richer environment, with opportunities to put faith in action.

Do you have a personal creed or philosophy that you live by?

I carry a card with me all the time. It has the words: Serve, Love, Encourage, Uplift. That's what I do. I'm constantly asking myself, how can I serve? How can I find ways to love unconditionally?

Are teaching and leading a ministry for you?

Teaching and leading are a ministry. "Work is my mission and mission is my work," as the saying goes. It is irrelevant where you find yourself teaching or leading, you are in ministry. You're still teaching. You're still leading. You can still articulate why you make the decisions you do, as well as how those decisions connect with your values and beliefs.

What do you love about teaching, and what do you love about leading?

I love the creativity of teaching. No two classes are ever the same, no two days and no two students are ever the same. You're constantly having to adjust, evolve, rethink. You can't get bored. I love the opportunity to open doors and see lightbulbs come on for students—to push them. I love the challenge of seeing them grow.

I like best when others flourish under my leadership; to see faculty and staff members being generative, creative, happy. I love creating the conditions where they are blazing the trail, and I just have to get out of the way. I like seeing when others become leaders themselves, become self-directed, motivated, willing to take risks—the evolution of someone feeling like they can make a difference, that what they do matters, and that someone will acknowledge their work.

Your doctoral research focused on the moral dimension of teaching and its relationship to classroom practice. How will that research inform your work here?

That research informs my life. When you complete a dissertation it becomes part of the fabric of who you are, I think.

I believe every encounter is a moral encounter, so it matters whether or not I smile, sneer, eye roll. Every encounter is a moral encounter, therefore the level of awareness I must constantly try to maintain is enormous. When you realize you're not an island—the John Donne poem—"every man is a piece of the continent, a part of the main." That changes the way I teach, lead, raise children, maintain friendships—the notion of living an other-focused life—then I feel like I'm living the Christian life. The lessons I learned through that study stay with me.

Dr. McEwan addresses students and parents at New Student Orientation just three weeks after taking office.

What else do you hope the Huntingdon family will know about you?

I hope the Huntingdon community will know that this person in this office has one goal: to serve and advance this institution while serving and advancing the kingdom of God.

Dr. McEwan and her husband, Paul, met at Asbury College and have been married for 34 years. He teaches science at Hoover High School and was named Alabama's Secondary Teacher of the Year in 2017. Their daughter, Hannah, is an elementary educator and lives with her husband, Zane, in Moody, Ala. Son Aaron is a first-year graduate student at the University of Alabama on his way toward becoming a college professor in communication studies. ■

TEACHING NOTES

Dr. Damion Womack

It's 4:00 p.m. Every fiber of Flowers Hall vibrates as the Marching Scarlet and Grey drum line beats out the Fight Song from the front porch of Smith Hall.

It's not an unusual day. The band isn't preparing for any one performance, or for encouraging any one team. They're practicing for all of the performances they'll have in the future, putting that horn sound in the right place, clipping the beat just so on a given measure.

Music has been part of Huntingdon College from its earliest days, when only women attended. They gathered in song for glee clubs and they practiced piano and other instruments. After all, music shares an experience like no other language can.

"I love working with students. I love the creativity ... the passion," says Dr. Damion Womack, new chair of the Department of Fine Arts at Huntingdon. "In choral music, each piece has a story. The first thing I go to [when I'm teaching a new piece] is the text—whether sacred or secular. You're able to tell stories."

Womack has taught music and directed choral programs for many years in schools—most recently at the Montgomery Academy, where he served as Director of Arts, garnering the McLemore Award for Excellence in Teaching. He also directs music for Memorial Presbyterian Church in Montgomery. He joined the Huntingdon faculty in the fall of 2017, bringing with him expertise gained in years of choral directing and competition.

The Huntingdon Concert Choir took the stage under his direction for the first time at the 2017 Presidential Convocation, traditionally the formal opening event of the academic year. Already, after being behind the baton for only a few weeks, he'd put in place a High School Honor Choir for February 2018 and planned a season of performances for his singers.

"Text first, then notes, rhythms, harmonies," says Womack. "Then you can begin to be expressive and tell the story—to match the composer's intent through phrasing, line, spacing, and tone."

When asked what inspires him most about music at Huntingdon, Womack says immediately, "potential. President West and Dr. McEwan have a strong interest in choral music and the arts. The students really want to continue the choral tradition."

Music teaches life lessons. Just as teamwork does. Just as leadership does. Womack believes those lessons include discipline, character, faith.

Right now, he's at that teaching-the-text phase. Learning the students. Learning the school. Finding and moving the right spaces for music to shine. The band, for example, will move into their own practice facility fashioned in the old pool space in Roland Student Center later this year. That move will free some elbow room for the choir to take over the practice facility in the upper-level of Smith Hall.

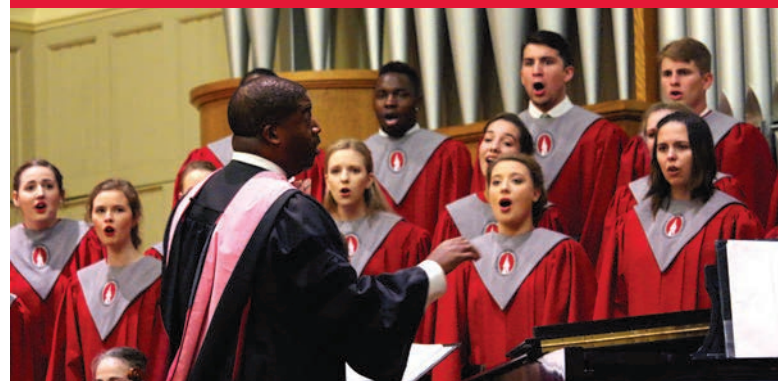

Womack serves as the American Choral Directors Association national chairman for high school choirs. He's in demand as a conductor and clinician.

Womack plans a travel/outreach tour in Alabama for the spring of 2018. In future years, he hopes to shepherd his singers to Carnegie Hall and eventually to Europe. Competition looms as a goal for later years, as well. But his present focus is to "Just make music and touch lives." That's a refrain we can all sing. ■

The choir leans in to hear feedback from their new director, Dr. Damion Womack.

TEACHING UP

Three summer academies focus high school students' vision both inwardly and beyond college.

June—that about-to-be-hotter-than-fire month in Alabama—brought several dozen new minds to campus in 2017. Young minds eager to learn, to find focus, to direct skills in new ways inspired faculty and staff alike as three summer academies for high school students gathered and disbursed, on fire toward new directions in their lives.

HUNTINGDON LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

In its third year, the Huntingdon Leadership Academy welcomed 40 rising high school juniors and seniors for a week-long immersion experience, June 25–30. Arriving from United Methodist churches across Alabama and the Florida panhandle, the students explored their calling to ministry vocations. The five-day academy provided mentoring, discussion of current topics in the life of the church, cultural and mission-related events, and time for fun, praise, and worship.

Late nights and deep discussions were exhausting for even the hardest group leaders, Bria Rochelle '18 (left) and Eliza Langille '18.

Lectures were led by Duke Divinity School Professor Dr. J. Warren Smith and by Huntingdon Department of Religion faculty. Worship was led by Huntingdon staff and guest preachers. Students served for Friendship Mission Thrift Store, toured notable civil rights sites in Montgomery, visited River Oaks Farm, and viewed works at the Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts. Group discussions and fellowship opportunities rounded out the week's activities.

"This program, in keeping with Huntingdon's emphasis on helping college students to discern and follow their vocational calling, provides vital early intervention for young people who are hungry to serve and who have the gifts and graces for ministry," said President J. Cameron West. "A call to ministry can be lived out in many ways, in addition to serving as an ordained pastor. We're thrilled to work with bright and forward-thinking young people who understand the essential role spirituality plays in a fulfilling life-path; and likewise, who understand the need for careful and strong leadership in the church and in society."

The Rev. Macon Armistead '14 (left) serves as director of HLA. "One of our students arrived on Sunday afternoon and appeared rather uninterested in being at the Huntingdon Leadership Academy," says Armistead. "After approaching him on that first day, I was disheartened because I could tell that he desperately did not want to be here. Over the course of the week, I saw this student making friends, laughing and having fun, and even sharing a testimony during our student-led worship service. At the final gathering with all of our students, mentors, and staff, this student expressed a call to ministry that became realized during HLA. I am grateful that the Lord can be personal enough to call each and every one of us, but also so much bigger than our own perceptions and hardened hearts."

Dates for 2018 are set for June 24–29. Students and their churches contribute toward the cost of participation, $50 each, with the remainder provided by a grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. as part of its High School Youth Theology Institutes Initiative.

HUNTINGDON ECONOMIC AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT SCHOLARS

Twenty-five rising high school seniors representing most regions of Alabama were part of the first annual Huntingdon College Economic and Community Development Scholars Program in mid-June. Planned in partnership with and sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Association of Alabama, the Economic Development Association of Alabama, and the Alabama Department of 2017 ECDS students participated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony for their "graduation."

Commerce, ECDS introduced young citizens who are poised to begin their professional journeys to the importance of economic and community development.

Students were selected for participation in the program by their area Chamber of Commerce Association. For the program, the students were divided into five communities, each of which vied to entice a corporation to settle in their area. The students toured local businesses and Alabama government offices, met with Alabama Governor Kay Ivey, heard from professionals seasoned in the importance and processes of economic and community development, and participated in economic and community development simulations. Participants “graduated” from the program wearing hard hats for ground-breaking and ribbon-cutting simulations.

“We were excited to have 25 of Alabama’s brightest lights on campus,” said Huntingdon senior vice president Anthony Leigh, an architect of the program. “These students have returned to their communities enlightened about what economic and community developers do, and we hope that knowledge has given them an appreciation for the work of growing and bettering our communities and our state.”

The 2018 ECDS will be held June 11–13. More information: <http://www.huntingdon.edu/economic-and-community-development-scholars-program>

HUNTINGDON HEALTH SCIENCES ACADEMY

Seventeen rising high school seniors participated in the first annual Huntingdon College Health Sciences Academy in June. During the three-day academy, students received personalized white coats, participated in Huntingdon alumni discussions about health professions, conducted experiments in hands-on health-related laboratories, and assembled health kits in a service project for the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR). The academy concluded with a graduation ceremony and luncheon.

HHSA students learn through experiments with instrumentation in the chemistry laboratory.

Dr. John Berch '98 teaches a chemistry lab as part of HHSA 2017.

According to academy director Dr. Maureen Kendrick Murphy '78, professor of chemistry, the healthcare industry is one of the few fields which, despite difficult economic woes, is hiring at an astounding rate. Jobs in the health sciences are expected to grow faster than any other industry—roughly 22%, or 3.2 million new jobs, by 2018. The purpose of the academy was to address the demand for healthcare professionals and to help rising high school seniors who are interested in health care professions to recognize where their talents and interests fit with the industry’s needs.

“Huntingdon has a long-standing tradition of excellent placement rates for graduates into medical, dental, pharmacy, optometry, physician assistant, accelerated nursing, and public health schools,” said Murphy. “Based upon the success of this year’s event and the evaluations of the student participants, we hope to expand HHSA for summer 2018.”

Students were selected for participation after an application process. Murphy and the other Huntingdon faculty will continue to serve as mentors to participants as they explore career options. “These students enriched our lives and spaces with their presence and engagement,” said Murphy. “They were an excellent first class. This is the class by which all future HHSA classes will be measured.”

HHSA 2018 will be held in June. Dates are pending. More information: <http://www.huntingdon.edu/health-sciences-academy> ■

HUNTINGDON HAPPENINGS

LEARNING BY THE SEA: Dauphin Island Sea Lab is a favorite annual trip for biology students who can enjoy the beach at the same time they learn about sea critters. Dr. Paul Gier, professor of biology, takes students on the trek and teaches for the sea lab during summers.

INVISIBLE WORDS: Poet, artist, and bookmaker Jen Bervin was the featured speaker for the 2017 Rhoda Coleman Ellison Writers Festival and lecture series in February. She has published nine books, including Nets, The Desert, and Gorgeous Nothings: Emily Dickinson's Envelope Poems. Silk Poems, an exploration of her latest work in nanoscale poetry with Tufts University's Silk Lab, is forthcoming from Nightboat Books.

MLK DAY OF SERVICE: Students, faculty and staff put together more than 500 Health Kits and more than 150 Homeless Kits for the United Methodist Committee on Relief (UMCOR), the service arm of the United Methodist Church.

HAWKS LOVE TREES: Huntingdon students planted 1-year-old trees on the Green in recognition of Arbor Day 2017, followed by a planting of larger trees later in the spring. The College continues as a Tree Campus USA.

IT'S GOOD TO BE GREEK: Greek Life is going strong at Huntingdon. Men's fraternities are Sigma Phi Epsilon, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Sigma Nu. Women's fraternities are Alpha Omicron Pi, Chi Omega, Phi Mu, and Alpha Kappa Alpha, Inc.

FROM CROWN TO GAVEL: Hannah Johnson '18, center, the 2016 Miss Huntingdon, traded her crown to the new Miss Huntingdon March 11 and picked up a gavel on March 13, when she was sworn in as president of the Student Government Association. The 2017 officers are, from left, Morgan Clausell '18, secretary; Bailey Burns '18, vice president; Johnson; Meagan Clausell '18, treasurer; and Savannah Gibbs '19, director of public relations.

MISS HUNTINGDON 2017: Josie Waddell '19, an exercise science major from Tuscumbia, Ala., was crowned Miss Huntingdon 2017 in March. Waddell is a member of and was sponsored by the Student Alumni Association for the pageant.

PROMOTING SOCIAL EXCELLENCE: Students were treated to an engaging presentation by Matt Mattson of the Social Excellence Project in March 2017. The gist: meaningful connections matter for effective leadership. Students were asked to introduce themselves to others they didn't know and engage in conversation—communication methods that are diminishing in today's social media-driven society.

ONE NIGHT A WEEK: Evening Studies graduates can complete their bachelor's degrees by attending classes just one night a week at 11 locations across the state.

STUDENTS GET IT AZ IZZ: The band Az IzZ headlined CloverJam on Top Stage in April 2017.

WINDS IN THE WINTER: The Department of Music presented the annual Huntingdon Winds Winter Concert in February 2017.

HUNTINGDON AMBASSADORS: Huntingdon Ambassadors are considered the premier student group on campus. Selected by the Office of College and Alumni Relations, Ambassadors serve as hosts at special events, speak with trustees at trustee meetings, and form calling teams for the annual Phonathon. The 2017–18 Ambassadors are, front row, from left: Sam Garrison '18, Wilsonville, Ore.; Dakota Beane '18, Oxford, Ala.; Abby Blankenship '18, Alexander City, Ala.; Sandy Mayson '18, Dothan, Ala.; Hannah Johnson '18, Greenville, Ala.; Damali Thomas '18, Conyers, Ga.; Raina Lanier '18, Auburn, Ala.; Luke Ates '17, Eufaula, Ala.; Bryce Bump '19, Richmond, Texas; John Robert Lawrence '18, Covington, La.; second row: Kevin Barnett '18, Satsuma, Ala.; Kyle Lancaster '17, Alabaster, Ala.; Audra Osborne '18, Millbrook, Ala.; Gabby George '18, Butler, Ala.; Olivia den Besten '19, Enterprise, Ala.; Aina Grods '18, Excel, Ala.; Kendall Causby '18, Prattville, Ala.; Josie Waddell '19, Tusculumbia, Ala.; Austin Washington '18, Chelsea, Ala.; Chase Young '19, Covington, Ga.; third row: Jason Reynolds '18, Skipperville, Ala.; Adam Mann '19, Owens Cross Roads, Ala.; Kasey Savage '18, Ashford, Ala.; Nancy-Canon Thackston '18, Enterprise, Ala.; Zoya Robinson '19, Montgomery, Ala.; Madison Fitzwater '18, Ashford, Ala.; Emily Conoly '19, Montgomery, Ala.; Cam Smith '18, Navarre, Fla.; Cody Dixon '19, Ft. Walton Beach, Fla.; Kendrick Ballard '18, Miami, Fla.; top row: Brandon McLean '18, Deer Park, N.Y.; Wyatt Popovich '18, Madisonville, La.; Justin Reeder '18, Ozark, Ala.; Heather Tabor '19, Fairhope, Ala.; Katie Bonner '18, Montgomery, Ala.; Shelby Clark '18, Navarre, Fla.; Audrianna Hargitt '18, Cedar Bluff, Ala.; Bailey Burns '18, Arab, Ala.; Miles Barnhardt '18, Monroeville, Ala.; Tristan Thompson '18, Dothan, Ala. Not pictured: De'Andre Beck '18, Oceanside, Calif.

STARS IN LIGON CHAPEL: Internationally renowned opera stars who normally perform with such landmark operas as the Metropolitan in New York and the Lyric Opera of Chicago converged on the Ligon Chapel stage for the 10th Anniversary Vann Vocal Institute Gala Celebrity Recital in April 2017. The 2018 event, a cooperative program with the Montgomery Symphony Orchestra, is planned for March 8.

HAGGIS, NEEPS, TATTIES, AND A WEE BEASTIE: How does this academic community celebrate the life and work of the poet Robert Burns? With the annual Burns Supper, held in February. Students sample Scottish foods, music, and, of course, Burns' poetry.

SYMPHONY OF STUDENTS: In April, dozens of high school musicians were on campus for the annual Symphonic Honor Band, hosted by the band program. Huntingdon Bands also sponsored the Alabama Independent Schools Band Association (AISBA) State Band Festival and State Honor Band in the spring.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS: Huntingdon students served as volunteer referees, scorekeepers, coaches, and cheerers when the Huntingdon Department of Sport Science and Physical Education hosted teams participating in the state Special Olympics basketball tournament in March 2017.

ADDRESSING MILLENNIALS: Pollster, political commentator, and generational expert Kristen Soltis Anderson spoke to millennials in the Class of 2017 for the traditional day program commencement ceremony in May. She appeared under the auspices of the Stallworth Lectureship in the Liberal Arts, the first time the two events have been combined. Her topic, "Civic Engagement: Millennial Power in a Boomer Nation," was based on her book, The Selfie Vote: Millennial Power in a Boomer Nation.

COME SEE OUR POD: A new POD (Provisions on Demand), operated by ARAMARK Dining Services, has opened on the Cloverdale Campus in the Weil Center. The POD offers convenience snacks and drinks to grab in between classes.

LARGEST CAST OF HAWKS EVER: The more than 300 members of the Class of 2017, with day and evening programs combined, comprised the largest graduating class in College history, each making their flight across Top Stage, Saturday, May 6.*

Inspirational Teaching

Dr. Erastus C. Dudley (right), professor of biology, was honored with the Julia Lightfoot Sellers Award by Huntingdon trustee Bobby Siebels (center) and President J. Cameron West during 2017 Commencement Exercises. The award is presented annually to the faculty member voted upon by members of the junior and senior classes as the teacher who has most inspired them to pursue lifelong learning.

Dr. Damion Womack, chair, Department of Fine Arts, assistant professor of music, and director of choral activities. Dr. Michele Martin returned as assistant professor of elementary education after serving as an instructor during 2016–17. Dr. Kristine Copping was promoted to associate professor of psychology; Dr. Doba Jackson was promoted to professor of chemistry; Mr. Jim Hilgartner was promoted to professor of English; and Dr. Tom Perrin (pictured), associate professor of English, was appointed associate provost.

Huntingdon welcomed six new faculty with the beginning of the 2017 fall semester. Simultaneously, the promotions of four returning faculty were announced. New to faculty are Dr. Blake Ball, assistant professor of history; Ms. Dessilyn Chappell, instructor of teacher education and teacher certification officer; Ms. Laryne Monte, instructor of piano and accompanist for Huntingdon choral programs; Dr. Allison Mugno, assistant professor of psychology; Dr. Sara Shoffner, assistant professor of sport management; and

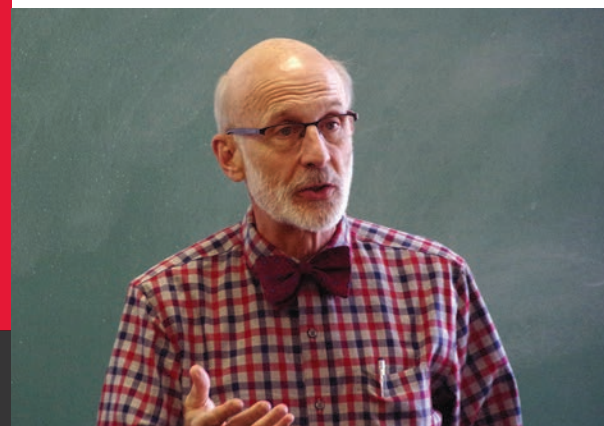

Dr. Elizabeth Hutcheon, assistant professor of English, was honored with the 2017 Dr. and Mrs. John N. Todd III Award for Excellence in Teaching in April 2017. The award was presented by former provost Dr. Chad Eggleston, left, and President J. Cameron West.

Huntingdon College accounting professor Brianne Smith was one of 16 CPAs under age 40 honored by the American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) with the second annual Personal Financial Planning Standing Ovation, recognizing her professional contributions to personal financial planning. Smith was honored at the AICPA's Advanced Personal Financial Planning Conference in Las Vegas.

The Huntingdon community bid farewell to two long-time faculty members upon their retirement at the close of the 2017 spring semester. Dr. Allen Tubbs, associate professor of biology, served the College for 11 years. Dr. Frank Buckner (pictured), associate provost for curriculum and faculty development and a professor of religion and philosophy since 1987, was honored with the Rhoda Coleman Ellison Distinguished Faculty Lifetime Service Award during traditional day student Commencement Exercises in May. We will miss their wisdom and their smiles.

Dr. Lisa Clark, assistant professor of sport science and physical education, was recognized with the Winn and Gordon Chappell Academic Enrichment Award, presented by the Chappells' son, Huntingdon trustee Dr. Rick Chappell, during 2017 Commencement Exercises.

Dr. Paul J. Gier (left), professor of biology, was honored with the Exemplary Teacher Award during Awards Convocation in April 2017.

TOPPING THE LISTS: In articles recently published by U.S. News and World Report, Huntingdon College was listed among "The Short List: 10 Colleges Where Studying Abroad is Common" and among "The Short List: 10 Colleges that Often Lead to Graduate School." The articles were based on data collected for the publishing of the 2016 U.S. News "Best Colleges" edition. The 2018 U.S. News "Best Colleges" edition, published in September 2017, ranked Huntingdon among the top Regional Colleges in the South and among the top ten Best Buys among Regional Colleges.

GETTING ORIENTED: New Student Orientation, held in three summer sessions, provides an in-depth opportunity for entering class members to meet their classmates, teachers, and college home.

MARCHING TO THE BEAT: More than 250 high schoolers marched along with the Marching Scarlet and Grey when the band program hosted its annual Marching Honor Band in September 2017.

PRESIDENT WEST APPOINTED TO NAICU BOARD: Huntingdon President J. Cameron West has been appointed to serve on the board of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities (NAICU). He represents Region VI, which encompasses independent colleges and universities in Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Texas. NAICU board members set the association's agenda on federal higher education policy; actively encourage support of association priorities and initiatives; and oversee the organization's financial administration. Members serve three-year terms.

HAWK WINGS: With the first orientation session during summer, the Office of Student Affairs launched an app to keep students in touch with events and opportunities in student life and around campus. The app is called Huntingdon Connect in your app store, and HawkWings after it's downloaded. Want to know what's going on at Huntingdon? Download the app!

100 DAYS TO GRADUATION: Donuts sugared the annual Center for Career and Vocation's 100 Days to Graduation celebration, hosted in the Office of College and Alumni Relations.

GOT BOOKS? The Huntingdon Bookstore no longer sells books! Well, not textbooks, anyway. With the advent of the 2016 academic year, the College began providing books and information resources within regular tuition and fees for new students. As that practice continues this year and most upper-level students order their books through online retailers like Amazon.com, the demand for book availability on campus has diminished. Huntingdon took over operation of the bookstore, previously run through Follett's, as the fall 2017 semester began. The store is stocked with collegiate merchandise and apparel.

HELLO AND GOODBYE: Mary Ann Pickard, archivist for both Huntingdon and the Alabama-West Florida Conference, retired this year at age 91. One of the final donations she accepted was Huntingdon memorabilia, including tapes of the graduation ceremonies from 1985 to 1994, filmed and collected by former Huntingdon bookstore manager Jack Thomas, right.

CAPPING THE HUNTINGDON EXPERIENCE: The Senior Capstone project is the culminating experience for students in Business Administration, Communication Studies, Art, Digital Art, English, Religion, Christian Ministries, Exercise Science, and Sport Studies: Health Promotion majors. Each senior studies in depth a topic agreed upon with his/her Capstone adviser, then presents the paper or body of work to a review committee. Other majors have culminating experiences in student-faculty research (Chemistry and Biochemistry) and clinical experiences (Teacher Education).

DISCUSSING CALLING: Dr. William Cavanaugh, a professor of political theology, economic ethics, and ecclesiology at Purdue University, presented the lecture, "You Can't Be Anything You Want (And It's a Good Thing, Too!)" for PACT students during the fall semester. PACT (Practicing the Art of Critical Thinking) is a core course students complete at the junior level. Cavanaugh's appearance was funded by a grant from NetVUE, the Network for Vocation in Undergraduate Education, an arm of the Council on Independent Colleges funded by the Lilly Foundation.

BUILDING MOMENTUM: During the summer and fall of 2017, the old pool facility in Roland Student Center has been transitioned into a new band practice facility and office complex for the growing Marching Scarlet and Grey. Nearby, construction is underway to separate the soccer/softball fields.

NOTHING ECLIPSES THE ECLIPSE: The event of the century took place on the very first day of classes for fall term 2017 as the U.S. experienced a rare total solar eclipse. Hundreds of students gathered on the front lawn of the Cloverdale Campus, provided with protective eyewear for Houghton Library's first Hogwarts at Huntingdon event. Although Montgomery wasn't in the totality, it was still an ecliptic event.

CATCH THE PREVIEW: The Office of Admission hosts several Preview Days during the academic year, providing tours, information, and connections with faculty and coaches for prospective students and families. Preview Days are held in October, November, and March. Learn more: huntingdon.edu/visit

HONORING CHARACTER: Ryan Runager '17, center, received the Algernon Sydney Sullivan recognition at Awards Convocation in April 2017. These awards seek to perpetuate the excellence of character and humanitarian service of Algernon and Mary Mildred Sullivan by recognizing such qualities in others. The awards are given only by selected "representative institutions" in the southern United States.

IT'S ALL IN THE NUMBERS: The Huntingdon College Accounting program has been recognized by the Alabama State Board of Public Accountancy as having the highest percentage CPA passing rate in 2016 among 20 NASBA schools in Alabama, with 71 percent. NASBA is the national organization for Boards of Accountancy, the ultimate guide for CPA exam pass rates. Huntingdon graduates also received the highest average scores on the test among all who took portions of the Alabama CPA exam in 2016.

ADAPTED P.E.: The Huntingdon Department of Sport Science and Physical Education's Adapted Physical Education classes give Huntingdon students practice working with special needs children and help children with disabilities learn basic skills and movements. For the class, special education students from three local elementary schools are bussed to Huntingdon for several hour-long sessions each semester.

HAWKS ACROSS MONTGOMERY: Huntingdon students served at sites across Montgomery in the traditional Big Red Day of Service as the 2017 academic year began. Led in teams by faculty, Student Affairs staff, and upper-level students, approximately 350 entering freshmen and transfers served in five sites in town and five sites on campus. The team pictured built School Kits for the United Methodist Committee on Relief.

Preparing for the Steps after the Top

Huntingdon's Center for Career and Vocation hosts numerous trips to graduate and professional schools, career seminars, placement and interviewing events to prepare students for the steps they'll take after they cross Top Stage.

The annual Teacher Education Job Fair brings representatives from local schools to interview Huntingdon teacher candidates who are about to graduate. The sessions provide both great practice and great connections for Huntingdon teacher candidates.

Students interested in learning about further education for health professions may attend the CCV's Pre-Health Professional School Fair. Representatives from institutions offering programs in medicine, physical therapy, occupational therapy, veterinary medicine, and related fields are present.

Rising accountants enjoy an opportunity to Meet the Firms annually. Students may discuss internship and career avenues and learn more about the accounting firms in town.

To learn what you do and don't like to do and find new possibilities for your future, there's no more important step than interning. Most students find internships in the Montgomery area, but Sam Garrison '18, of Wilsonville, Ore., interned with the National Park Service's Vanishing Treasures program at Grand Teton National Park during summer 2017.

Coffee and conversation can lead to connections. Huntingdon students were invited to share a cup with alumni and community professionals during the first CCV Central Perk event in fall 2017. Pictured, from left: Cam Smith '18; Luke Ates '17, coordinator of donor relations; and Dakota Beane '18.

TELLING THE STORY: The 2017–18 Student Recruiters are from left, first row: Kaitlyn Bradley '19, Diamond Branch '20, Maggie Porter '20, Katelyn Bianco '19, Ragin Berry '19, Hannah Johnson '18, Sidney Carol Hall '19, Morgan Clausell '18, Mary Palm '18, Madison Harris '19, Randie Caine '20; second row: Morgan Harris '19, Anna Blair Cockrell '19, Zoya Robinson '19, Jordan Fleming '20, Kirstin Wood '19, Autumn Allday '20, Sidney Ison '20, Heather Tabor '19, Miranda Owens '19; third row: Virginia Gaston '20, Devin Blackburn '20, Madison Vordenbaum '20, Savannah Gibbs '19, Aina Grods '18, Sarah Best '19, Brianne Jones '19, Jasmine Cardwell '19, Meagan Clausell '18, Damali Thomas '18, Autumn Finn '20; top row: Tristan Powell '20, Wade Thomas '19, Adam Mann '19, Darianté "Té" Archible '18, Keith (Chip) Taylor '18, Brandon McLean '18, Wyatt Popovich '18, Milan Branch '18, Cody Dixon '19, Bryce Bump '19, Jalen Hardin '20.

MOVING IN: Even the heat didn't beat the smiles as students moved into their college home on one of the hottest days of a long hot summer in August.

FINDING YOUR NICHE: The Office of Student Affairs' Org Fair puts students in touch with campus organizations that fit or stretch their interests.

CAMPUS MINISTRIES: The Rev. Rhett Butler '13 returned to the Huntingdon family in summer 2017 to serve as chaplain.

MEET THE COURT: The 2017 Homecoming Court, elected by their peers, included, from left: Amanda Crowell '21, Exercise Science, Enterprise, Ala.; Halle Teal '21, Exercise Science, Midland City, Ala.; Dalis Smith '20, Communication Studies, Opp, Ala.; Virginia Gaston '20, Elementary Education/Collaborative Special Education, Guntersville, Ala.; Ragin Berry '19, Political Science, Enterprise, Ala.; Anna Blair Cockrell '19, Exercise Science, Aliceville, Ala.; Queen Bria Rochelle '18, Exercise Science, Mobile, Ala.; Morgan Clausell '18, Exercise Science, Uriah, Ala.; Raina Lanier '18, Elementary Education/Collaborative Special Education, Auburn, Ala.; Meagan Clausell '18, Biochemistry, Uriah, Ala.; Josie Waddell '19, Exercise Science, Tuscumbia, Ala.; Olivia den Besten '19, Chemistry and Mathematics, Enterprise, Ala.; Sydney Ison '20, Biochemistry, Huntsville, Ala.; Autumn Allday '20, Exercise Science, Valley Grande, Ala.; Lucy Burch '21, Communication Studies and Religion, Florence, Ala.; Mary Stanley '21, Biology, Panama City, Fla.

NATIONAL COACH OF THE YEAR: Hawks Director of Golf Dave Schreyer '89 (black tie) was named NCAA-Division III Golf Coach of the Year in June 2017. Of the six National Coach of the Year winners, three have ties to Huntingdon. In addition to Schreyer, Division I winner Scott Limbaugh '03 of Vanderbilt played and coached for the Hawks, and Division II winner Steve Fell '87 of the University of West Florida played for Huntingdon. Schreyer is pictured with members of the 2017-18 men's golf team and former head golf coach John Sadie (left of Coach Schreyer).

MEET THE QUEEN: Bria Rochelle '18, an Exercise Science major from Mobile, Ala., was voted 2017 Homecoming Queen. Rochelle is a member of Alpha Omicron Pi women's fraternity and has served as a Huntingdon Ambassador, Orientation Leader, and a Huntingdon Leadership Academy (HLA) mentor. She serves as a pastoral intern at First United Methodist Church in Montgomery.

HELPING TEACHERS ADAPT: More than 100 educators, teacher candidates, and community professionals have been trained through the Ability Sport Network's Adapted Sport Training. ASN is a program of the Department of Sport Science and Physical Education.

HAVE FOOD, WILL TRAVEL: Food trucks are present at nearly every Student Affairs event this year, and for good reason. Students love them! Waffles and Worship was a Campus Ministries-sponsored event following Tuesday Night Worship in fall 2017.

CUDDLING AWAY THE STRESS: Pets on the Porch puts smiles on human and dog faces alike for a few hours each semester as students de-stress from long hours of studying for finals.

JAZZ ON THE GREEN: Huntingdon Jazz and Huntingdon Winds presented their Concert on the Green in April 2017. The event has become a tradition, drawing larger crowds each year just as the school year concludes.

QUILTING HISTORY: The Black Student Union hosted quilt artist Yvonne Wells during Black History Month 2017. Wells' quilts, which depict scenes from the civil rights movement, are included in private and museum collections around the world.

MIDNIGHT MADNESS: Basketball bounced front and center as the College celebrated Midnight Madness at the beginning of the 2017-18 season. At right is head coach Caleb Kimbrough.

Promoting Community Leadership

Huntingdon College will form a new scholarship and student learning cohort known as the Community Leadership Program beginning fall 2018. For the program, a four-year cohort of entering first-year students interested in helping Alabama communities grow and prosper will be selected. Interested high school seniors may apply for consideration by February 1 at www.huntingdon.edu/community-leadership.

Students may major in any area and be part of the program. As part of the Community Leadership Program, students will participate in field trips, community development simulations, special guest lectures, and think-tanks on topics that influence community development.

"In order for our communities to thrive, we need to develop citizens' thinking regarding how they can be part of that community-building process," said Huntingdon College President J. Cameron West. "Rather than looking solely toward elected officials to make our communities thrive—and they certainly have a role—citizens need to understand that they have a role as well. Huntingdon has always been focused on developing graduates who are tuned into the College's core values of faith, wisdom, and service, not only for their own lives, but also for their communities. The Community Leadership Program promises not only to reshape how students think, but also to influence the places and spaces where they live after graduating."

The idea for the program grew out of the College's Economic and Community Development Scholars summer program.

Community Leadership Program (CLP) Scholars, who will be given $13,500 tuition scholarships, may explore a number of different topics. "There are so many important topics we can look at through the eyes and guidance of leaders who have addressed or are addressing these issues," said West. "How does access to education affect a community's leadership base? How do safe water and waste management affect community health? How do interstates and roadways, shopping access, education, and recreation affect a community's ability to attract new enterprises? These are all such important topics—and there are so many more—we can address together. CLP is designed to develop an awareness of the issues and a new mindset toward addressing them." ■

IN THE HAWKS' NEST

Fall Sports

CROSS COUNTRY

Huntingdon restarted its men's and women's cross country programs in the fall of 2017. Under first-year head coach Dan August, the teams competed in six events, wrapping up the season in the USA South Athletic Conference Championships.

FOOTBALL

The Hawks Football Team captured the USA South Athletic Conference title November 4 with a win over Methodist University, the third consecutive year for clinching the conference championship. Head Coach Mike Turk was named USA South Coach of the Year for the third consecutive year and Linell Tarver '21 was named USA South Defensive Rookie of the Year. The Hawks advanced to round one of the NCAA-Division III championships. Huntingdon's first-team All-Conference selections were running back Vic Jerald '18, receiver Otis Porter '19, H-Back Colton Chinn '20, offensive linemen Chris Hering '19 and Adam Mann '19, linebacker Trey Hayes '19, and defensive back Jarrett White '19. Named to the second team were quarterback Chip Taylor '18, linebacker Brandon Williams '20, defensive backs Anthony Wood '18 and Demetrius Beverly '18, and kicker Chase Young '19. This was the 10th straight winning season for the Hawks and the 12th winning season in 14 seasons under Coach Turk.

SOCCER

The Huntingdon women's soccer team turned in its best season of the NCAA era, posting an 11-7-1 record and advancing to the quarterfinals of the USA South Athletic Conference Tournament. The team set its NCAA-era season records for wins (11), most shutouts (9), fewest goals allowed (19), most assists (22) and most points (90). The team's 34 goals this season were the third-most of the NCAA era. Elena Guy '21 was selected as a second-team West Division All-Conference player. The men's team finished with a 2-14-1 record, highlighted by an 8-0 win over Berea and a 1-0 win over Covenant.

VOLLEYBALL

The Huntingdon volleyball team posted its first winning season since 2009 and finished with a 19-18 record. The 19 wins were the most for the Hawks in at least a decade. In its fifth season in the USA South Athletic Conference, Huntingdon earned its second appearance in the conference tournament and won its first conference tournament match.

Winter Sports

BASKETBALL

The Huntingdon women's basketball team earned 20 wins for the first time in the NCAA era, reached the USA South Athletic Conference Tournament for the first time, and won its first conference tournament game to cap the 2016-17 season, finishing with a 20-7 record. Juliette Harp '18 earned first-team All-Conference honors, set the program's NCAA-era records for rebounds and blocked shots in a season, and finished with the third most points in a season during the NCAA era. Twelve women's basketball players earned Academic All-Conference honors. The men's team finished with a 2-23 record and will be looking for improved results during the 2017-18 season under new head coach Caleb Kimbrough. Six Hawks were named to the Academic All-Conference team.

WRESTLING

The third-year Huntingdon wrestling program continued to make strides, winning five dual matches and four individual in the NCAA Division III Central Regional Tournament. DeAndre Beck '18 (141 pounds) finished sixth in the Central Regional, marking the highest finish by a Hawk yet. Beck was named a National Wrestling Coaches Association Scholar All-American and the Huntingdon team was named an NWCA Scholar Team. Ten wrestlers earned Academic All-Conference honors.

Spring Sports

BASEBALL

The Huntingdon baseball team advanced to the USA South Athletic Conference Tournament for a second consecutive season. The Hawks finished with a 13-24 record but closed the season with a win over Oglethorpe. Taylor Fought '18 and Wes Powell '20 earned second-team All-Conference honors and 32 players were named Academic All-Conference.

BEACH VOLLEYBALL

The first-year beach volleyball program won two matches, playing primarily against more established Division I and Division II programs. The Hawks hosted the other two Division III teams at Samford Stadium. Huntingdon beat Principia 3-2 for the first win in Hawks history. In the win, the No. 2 team of Bria Rochelle '18 and Alexis Creasman '20 won the first individual match in program history 21-13, 21-16. The No. 1 team of Audrianna Hargitt '18 and Shelby Young '20 and the No. 4 team of Lexie DeVuyst '20 and Alex Hillman '20 also won to clinch the team victory. The team produced 12 Academic All-Conference selections.

GOLF

The Huntingdon men's golf team turned in another dominant season, earning a No. 1 ranking in Division III for the majority of the 2016-17 season and finishing fourth in the NCAA Men's Golf Championship. Huntingdon won 5 tournaments and placed in the top 4 in all 10 tournaments. The five wins were the second most in a season for the Hawks during the NCAA era. Director of Golf Dave Schreyer '89 was recognized as the Division III National Coach of the Year, South Region Coach of the Year, and the USA South Athletic Conference Coach of the Year. Addison Lambeth '17 was named first-team All-America,

All-Region, and was the USA South Golfer of the Year. Will Thrash '17 was named second-team All-America, an Academic All-America Scholar, All-Region, and first-team All-Conference. Stephen Shephard '19 was named second-team All-America, All-Region, and honorable mention All-Conference; and Chad Ring '17 was named honorable mention All-America, an Academic All-America Scholar, All-Region, and second-team All-Conference. On the women's side, LeeAnn Cahoon '17 opened the season with the best round in program history with a 1-under-par 69 and earned the first individual win in Lady Hawks' history in the BSC Southern Shootout. Courtney Harville '17 was named an All-American Scholar for a fourth season and 15 men's and women's golfers earned Academic All-Conference honors.

LACROSSE

The Huntingdon men's lacrosse team tied its record for wins in a season and finished with a 10-8 record. Huntingdon hosted the Southeast Independent Lacrosse Championship tournament at Samford Stadium and lost in the semifinals. Matt Murphy '19 was named the SEILC Defensive Player of the Year and was named to the All-Conference team with Kendrick Ballard '18, Sam Hitt '19, and Josh Clayton '17. Seventeen Hawks earned Academic All-Conference recognition from the USA South. The fifth-year women's lacrosse team finished with a 3-11 record but closed the season with a 15-5 win over LaGrange. Nine Lady Hawks earned Academic All-Conference honors.

TENNIS

The Huntingdon men's and women's tennis teams returned to the USA South Athletic Conference Tournament for a fourth straight season. The Lady Hawks advanced to the tournament semifinals and finished the season with a 15-6 record. The 15 wins marked the 13th consecutive season the women have won at least 10 matches. Dusty Catala '20 was named USA South first-team West Division and Mariah Bastos '20 and Josie Waddell '19 were named second-team West Division. Five Lady Hawks were named Academic All-Conference and four were chosen as ITA Scholar Athletes. This was the 12th time since 2004 the Lady Hawks were recognized as an ITA All-Academic team. On the men's side, the Hawks reached the first round of the conference tournament and finished with a 7-14 record. John Jones '18 was selected first-team West Division and five Hawks earned Academic All-Conference honors.

SOFTBALL

The Huntingdon softball team made its fourth straight appearance in the USA South Athletic Conference Tournament and finished with an 18-26 record. Under first-year head coach Casey Chrietberg '09, the Lady Hawks advanced to the second day of the conference tournament. Samara Miller '20 was named first-team All-Conference and 10 softball players were named Academic All-Conference. ■

Honor Roll of Donors, 2016–17

Huntingdon College gratefully acknowledges the contributions of countless men and women who have given unselfishly of their time, talent, and financial resources to advance this institution. To the alumni, parents, friends, businesses, foundations, organizations, students, faculty, and staff whose generosity during the past year supported a myriad of programs, scholarships, and special projects, the College extends its sincere thanks.

This report contains the names of donors who made gifts to Huntingdon during the fiscal year of June 1, 2016, through May 31, 2017. It includes those who made capital gifts as well as donations to the Huntingdon Fund. This listing does not include those who made pledges, but not gifts, in 2016–17, nor those whose gifts were received after May 31, 2017. An asterisk denotes those now deceased.

We strive to make this honor roll error-free; however, if we have inadvertently omitted your name or listed it incorrectly, please accept our apologies and notify us by calling the Office of College and Alumni Relations at (334) 833-4566 so we may correct our records.

The Alice Reynolds Outdoor Volleyball Center, constructed on the north end of the football practice field, was dedicated March 17, 2017, in conjunction with the new beach volleyball team's first home match. Ms. Reynolds, a long-time Huntingdon neighbor and trustee, was an advocate for Huntingdon in the community until her death in 2014. Educated at a liberal arts college, she held a deep affinity for Huntingdon and for the College's mission in higher education. Members of her family were present for the dedication.

J. Christopher Flowers displays the portrait of his great grandfather, John Jefferson Flowers (namesake of Flowers Hall) in the study of his home in London.

“I didn’t always know I wanted to be a teacher. In fact, there was a time when my thought process was, ‘why on earth would anybody go to school for 13 years, then go to school for another four years, just to go back to school for the next 40?’ As time went on, I realized that there was something so special and rewarding about working with children; about seeing that light in their eyes when they understand a new concept. That feeling of wanting to jump on the table and do front flips when your student, who started at a level 0 book, is now reading a level 10! I guess you could say somewhere between here and there I just knew that teaching is what I wanted to do with my life.”

Sullivan Award presented to Karl and Brenda Stegall

Huntingdon College President J. Cameron West and the College's Board of Trustees honored Karl and Brenda Stegall with the Mary Mildred Sullivan Award in May 2017. The award, sponsored by the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Foundation, is given only by selected "representative institutions" in the southern United States to non-student members of their college communities and seeks to perpetuate excellence of character and humanitarian service. Honorees demonstrate a "spirit of helpfulness and an awareness of the beauty and value of the intangible elements of life," such that "the spiritual standard of the institution may be judged by the character of the person to whom the award is made."

Karl Stegall served for more than 40 years in ministry and as both a pastor and a district superintendent in the Alabama-West Florida Conference of the United Methodist Church. Since his retirement in 2007, he has devoted his time to the Stegall Seminary Scholarship Endowment Foundation as its volunteer president. The foundation was established to provide seminary scholarships for students from the AWF Conference. In the past decade, the Stegall Foundation has awarded more than $3 million in scholarships to more than 180 United Methodist students from the AWF Conference studying in seminaries.

Throughout the Stegalls' ministry, Brenda Stegall taught elementary Sunday School classes and directed children's choirs in most of the churches where her husband was appointed. The Stegalls were married in 1965.

"Karl and Brenda Stegall are truly partners with Huntingdon College, serving with the College fruitfully and powerfully to advance the United Methodist Church's missional priority of preparing the next generation of leaders for the church and the world," said West. "The Stegalls intend to devote the rest of their lives to providing financial assistance for seminarians who are struggling financially. Without question, Karl and Brenda Stegall embody the highest ideals of Huntingdon College."

My 11th grade English teacher, Mrs. Walker, helped me with subjects far beyond English. She helped me develop my critical thinking skills—taught me how to think through different texts and how to interpret different situations. She pushed me academically. I think that after having several really good teachers in high school, I saw the impact I could have as a teacher."

Wendy and Anthony Leigh, senior vice president for institutional development and alumni relations, brought their prospective Hawk to the Homecoming tailgate and to her first Preview Day. Daughter Carey Mae, Huntingdon College Class of 2039, was born May 17, 2017.

"I knew that teaching would be my profession when I started working hands-on with the students in the schools. To see them grasp something they are learning makes me feel so accomplished. It is truly one of the best feelings in the world."

Continue the Legacy!

Alumni can impact positively the lives of prospective students with the awarding of the $10,500 Alumni Legacy Grant. Alumni may refer one student annually by sending the student's name, address, phone numbers, e-mail address, and current school information; your name, address, class year, and contact information; and a paragraph or two about how you know the student and why you think he or she would be an asset to Huntingdon College. The Alumni Legacy Grant is renewable for up to three additional years of study, requires on-campus residency, and requires the student to maintain satisfactory academic progress toward the completion of his or her degree. Applications cannot be submitted after the first day of classes of a student's first year at Huntingdon College.

Please send your referral to Huntingdon College Office of College and Alumni Relations, 1500 East Fairview Avenue, Montgomery, Alabama, 36106; email alumni@hawks.huntingdon.edu; or you may complete the online form at huntingdon.edu/alumni-legacy-grant.

“My speech teacher and school librarian illustrated to me the real meaning of teaching: that it is more than getting through a class period with your students. Teaching requires you to care for the overall success of your students—whether that means attempting to talk sports, showing up to extracurricular events, or even just cracking jokes in class to help alleviate the stress of tests.”

“I knew I wanted to be a teacher after my first observation hour. I saw so many opportunities to mold young minds and to be a mentor in the difficult journey of finding yourself. I also want to give back to my community. My teachers helped shape who I am today, and I want to be that person to my future students.”

—Virginia Gaston '20

“Growing up I thought I wanted to be a children’s minister. After taking a few education classes, I began to realize why I wanted to be a teacher. Teaching children had become a ministry. My ministry is being a light to my students, believing in them, showing them love and support, and never giving up on them.”

“I didn’t have an influential teacher when I was growing up. I don’t even think my teachers knew my reading scores. I don’t want other kids to feel like they can’t do it, because they can. I want to be that role model for them—I want to help students go on and do great things.”

I decided that I wanted to be a teacher at a very young age. I loved the idea of getting to spend every day striving for that 'light bulb moment' in a child's eyes; that moment when you can really see that you have helped a child develop a true understanding of something."

“At a young age I would play ‘school’ and pretend my dogs were the students. I would read books to them and teach them everything I thought they needed to know. Growing up I remember spending countless summers setting up my mother’s classroom and being so very excited to get to help. I could not imagine myself in another profession.”

Student Alumni Association

The Huntingdon Student Alumni Association was formed in 2012 by a group of students who wanted to demonstrate their loyalty to Huntingdon and to assist the Office of College and Alumni Relations by making gifts of $10 or more to the Huntingdon Fund. These students' names are included among the classes of 2017, 2018, 2019, and 2020. We celebrate these students for their foresight; for their understanding that each private college's strength is built by the support of private gifts; and for their enthusiastic support.

In Memoriam

ALUMNI

- Flora Grant Reese '57, librarian emerita, died March 12, 2017. Ms. Reese was a member of the Huntingdon faculty from 1972 to 1999, then retired and continued part-time until 2016. She served as a cataloguing and classification librarian with an expertise in original cataloguing. She was the first librarian at the College to be granted tenure. According to Eric A. Kidwell, director of the library, her expertise was integral to the library's retrospective conversion project that laid the groundwork for automation, completed in 2002. She was also among the staff who planned the Charles and Thelma Dixon Wing of the library, completed in 1989. Mr. Kidwell said, "On a more personal note, her colleagues on the library faculty and staff, past and present, will deeply miss her. She was a wonderful mentor to those who came after her and her kindness and generosity made her a cherished friend." Ms. Reese died following a prolonged illness.

- Rosemary Parkman Geier '38, Sept. 28, 2016, Nashville, Tenn.
- Wilhelmina Mathis Corbin '40, Nov. 16, 2016, Fort Myers, Fla.

- Wanda Hester Jones '44, Sept. 12, 2016, Portland, Tenn.

- Marie Baker Sinclair '44, Jan. 30, 2017, Northport, Ala.; Dr. Sinclair was a deeply devoted alumna of Huntingdon College. She was a member of the Huntingdon Society, the Order of the Countess of Huntingdon, the Hall of Honor, and the John Massey Heritage Society. She established numerous endowed scholarships at Huntingdon and was a faithful supporter of the Huntingdon Fund. She was one of only a handful of alumni who have received both the Huntingdon College Achievement Award (1976) and the Huntingdon College Loyalty Award (1995). This magazine is dedicated in memory of Marie Sinclair.
